Organizational Misbehaviors: What Is OMB and How Do We Address It?

Matt Burr, SPHR, GPHR, SHRM-SCP

Program Description: Come discuss workplace norms and how they are defined. Learn about how common organizational misbehaviors that are committed unintentionally and not dealt with affect organizations. Learn how to recognize and address organizational misbehavior; proactively, timely and consistently. Organizational Misbehavior is relevant to every HR professional due to the ever evolving definition of the workplace, the changes in legislation, and the rapid changes in technology.

Speaker Background: Matthew Burr has over nine years of experience working in the human resources field, starting his career as an Industrial Relations Intern at Kennedy Valve Manufacturing to most recently founding and managing a human resources consulting company; Burr Consulting, LLC. Matthew is an Adjunct Professor at both Corning Community College and Elmira College; teaching Organizational Behavior and Effective Negotiations, along with developing curriculum for a Workplace Readiness course. Matthew is also a SHRM Certification Exam Instructor and co-teaches the SHRM Exam Prep Course at Elmira College.
